INTRODUCTION

Research suggests that the most effective people are those who understand themselves, both their strengths and weaknesses, so they can develop strategies to meet the demands of their environment.

An individual's talents and personal skills are a fundamental and integral part of who they are.

In this report we are measuring three dimensions of thought. They are:

- * Intrinsic - People
- * Extrinsic - Tasks or things
- * Systemic - Systems

This report analyzes talents; that is, a person's ability to do things. Is the report 100% true? Yes, no and maybe. As you review your report, please determine which items are job related. This will give you insight as to where to begin development.

EXTERNAL DESCRIPTION

Integrated—High Level of Development

Description

Jane judges situations in a balanced, objective way in terms of all three basic perspectives: people, situations, and systems. When she takes action, she can move in and out of any one of the three value perspectives with ease. The integrated pattern indicates that she is not stuck in any one dimension. She can relate to and deal with other people well and maintains healthy, fulfilling relationships naturally. She also has good practical skills and can relate well to tangible things, processes and events. She understands how to deal effectively with ideas, knowledge, and systems. This integrated pattern indicates the world is wide open for her and suggests that she is able to take advantage of any and all opportunities.

Strengths

Jane is versatile and stable and adapts well to different types of people and changing situations. It is easy for her to see what she needs to emphasize or focus on, depending on the nature of the situation she is in. If an interpersonal focus is called for, she has the ability to turn on her people skills and relate well to others. If an external or task focus is needed, she has the ability to become an action-oriented achiever who focuses on the work at hand to get things done. If she determines that the situation calls for a systematic focus, she has the ability to turn her attention to learning and gaining more knowledge about the situation. This suggests her greatest talents are flexibility, objectivity and versatility.

Development Opportunities

Jane's greatest opportunity for growth is centered in maintaining strong identification with current activities, roles and responsibilities. She enjoys getting involved in new activities; but, if the activities become routine or "easy" for her and she doesn't feel challenged, she may not want to stay involved.

EXTERNAL DESCRIPTION

Best Performance Climate

Jane will learn, work or perform best in an atmosphere where there is an open exchange of ideas and where feedback is readily available. She also prefers an environment where responsibilities and decisions are shared, and her input and creativity is appreciated and challenged on a regular basis.

External Bias Description

Jane is someone who relates to the world primarily in terms of established system and order, (e.g., rules, the law). Most of her energies are focused on making things fit into the established system or organization. Her somewhat negative view of the tasks dimension reveals that she takes a conscious distance from the practical work process and social convention. Her neutral view of the people dimension reflects balanced objectivity toward other persons. She is not too trusting or too distant but strikes a realistic balance when valuing others without getting overly involved to ensure that she makes an objective and accurate decision.

Jane is good at seeing the big picture or the overall plan of things and how it impacts others much more clearly than she sees the step-by-step process it may take to get the results she wants. She has a talent for comparing facts and ideas and generally makes a fair judgment or reaches a well-founded conclusion concerning what action should be taken in any given situation based on available evidence and careful, critical evaluation. Her people skills enable her to ask others the right leading questions, to inquire about things without insulting others, and to deliberately and carefully weigh the pros and cons before expressing her critical evaluation or decision. She tries to ensure that she has sufficient knowledge or experience to decide on the merits, controversy, point at issue, or conflicts before making a decision or forming an authoritative opinion.

INTERNAL DESCRIPTION

Role-Authentic—High Level of Development

Description

Jane shows a strong and equally developed focus on who she is and what she can do or is doing. She enjoys being a part of the process of getting things done and identifies with her work and personal roles. In a sense, her identity is her roles and activities. She feels her own worth is equally based on her sense of self and on what she can produce and achieve. She wants to see good results from her work, and that becomes a part of her sense of self. She enjoys being herself, and she is confident, reliable and responsible. She is well aware of her strengths and gets involved in activities or jobs that will best utilize her talents or help to further develop her potential. She will best achieve goals when she is fully engaged.

She under appreciates the systemic, thinking or structural aspects of her life. She is not strict about concepts or images that guide her forward and that shape her future. This means that she probably uses planning in a flexible way to help her focus her time and energy on the role responsibilities in the present. She usually starts new things intuitively and sees the future as a process of discovery, rather than being clear-cut and definite.

Strengths

Jane is confident in her abilities to perform and fulfill her roles and responsibilities in life. She has an inner strength that helps her to persevere, even in difficult situations. Her general attitude toward change is to adapt to it in practical ways and try to go with the flow of things. She is open to future possibilities and opportunities, and her flexibility about her long-term future should help her to take advantage of the best opportunities. She has a strong sense of self worth and identifies with her primary roles and activities.

Development Opportunities

Jane does not have a strong sense of appreciation for systems, plans, rules, and organization as it applies to her own life. She puts less emphasis on defining or talking about herself. She is more concerned about what is happening in the present than with planning a clear and definite future. She is probably eager and enthusiastic about her potential future, but her picture of the future is more vague and uncertain, since her focus is on current roles and responsibilities.

INTERNAL DESCRIPTION

Internal Bias Description

Jane has a neutral attitude toward sense of self and a positive self direction. The negative bias on role awareness shows that she is not getting the personal sense of fulfillment from her roles she would like to have. The positive bias on self direction shows this fulfillment is soon expected. She has a clear self-image in the area of self direction, and this conviction of self-concept encourages her to express herself frequently and forcefully. She is definite about her vision of the future and works hard on goals with high energy and strong discipline.
